ทั่วทั้งโลกบูชาความสำเร็จ คุณถูกปลุกฝัง
ให้เกิดทุนความสำเร็จ ความสำเร็จอันยิ่งใหญ่ที่ได้มา
มีความทุกข์โศกอันใหญ่หลวงรวมอยู่ด้วยเสมอ

The whole world is worshipping success. You are fed on the glorification of success. With the achievement of great success there is also great sorrow.

Krishnamurti on Yoga

Krishnamurti didn't advocate a particular system or school of yoga and warned of not making it into a religion or system of enlightenment. He eschewed the philosophical and spiritual aspects of yoga, instead highlighting the moral aspects and the importance of a 'good body' which is sensitive and 'independently intelligent'.

Krishnamurti met the renowned sculptor Antoine Bourdelle in early 1927, through a mutual friend. Bourdelle requested Krishnamurti sit for a statue to be made. He sat for eight days in 1927 and returned in 1928. The resulting bust of Krishnamurti is at the Musée Bourdelle in Paris and it is considered to be one of his finest works. This article expands upon the relationship between the two men, and introduces a 21st-century companion piece.

Krishnamurti with Asit Chandmal – Thought cannot investigate into intelligence

This conversation took place at Brockwood Park in 1982. Krishnamurti asks: Do you accept that intelligence is not the product of thought? What do you have you left when you don't use the brain to inquire? What is not contaminated by thought? Can your brain observe something whole without any kind of fragmentation?

Krishnamurti and Asit Chandmal were friends for many years, and Krishnamurti would often stay with him when in Bombay. Chandmal studied engineering in London, where he later taught mathematical economics, before becoming finance director at Tata Motors. His interest in computing led to Chandmal's involvement with many Silicon Valley start-ups. A trustee of the Krishnamurti Foundation India, he was also a keen photographer and in 1985 published One Thousand Moons, a book of photographs illustrating a year in Krishnamurti's life.

On Truth
From the Krishnamurti Postal Lending Library

There is a section in the library entitled “Theme Books”. In these books, particular topics have been extracted from Krishnamurti’s books, talks, dialogues, and interviews. Topics include: On Nature and the Environment, On Self Knowledge, On Love and Loneliness, On Religious Life, On living and Dying, On Conflict, On Freedom, On Fear, On Learning and Knowledge, On God, and others. Some of these books have been previously reviewed.

A feature of these books is that material has been selected from the various decades of Krishnamurti’s work, and presented chronologically, so it is possible to investigate if there has been evolution in his approach.

Here we are looking at the theme book “On Truth”. From the back cover notes”

“On Truth offers Krishnamurti's most profound ruminations on the search for truth. In 1929, he began his life of public teaching by saying, "Truth is a pathless land." Throughout his many years of speaking to audiences of all ages and backgrounds, he continually emphasised that truth cannot be approached through the instrument of thought. Truth is intangible and nameless, and can only be realised through exploring the total movement of thought and its activities. Appearing in print for the first time these vital teachings show how truth arises when effort ceases, the mind is empty, and there is only the present moment. We learn that truth comes uninvited when one puts all in order.

From Krishnamurti's own words:

"It is only those who are in constant revolt that discover what is true, not the man who conforms, who follows some tradition. It is only when you are constantly inquiring, constantly observing, constantly learning, that you find truth, God, or love."
