

KANZ NEWS – October 2026

www.kanz.org.nz

When you close the doors and windows of the house and live inside, you feel safe, secure, unmolested. But life is not like that; life is constantly knocking on the door, trying to push the windows open so that you may see more. But if there is fear and you close all the windows, the knocking grows louder. So the more outward securities you cling to, the more life comes and pushes you.

The Krishnamurti Foundation Trust have recently launched The Krishnamurti Collection, a new podcast featuring unedited, full-length audio recordings by Krishnamurti.

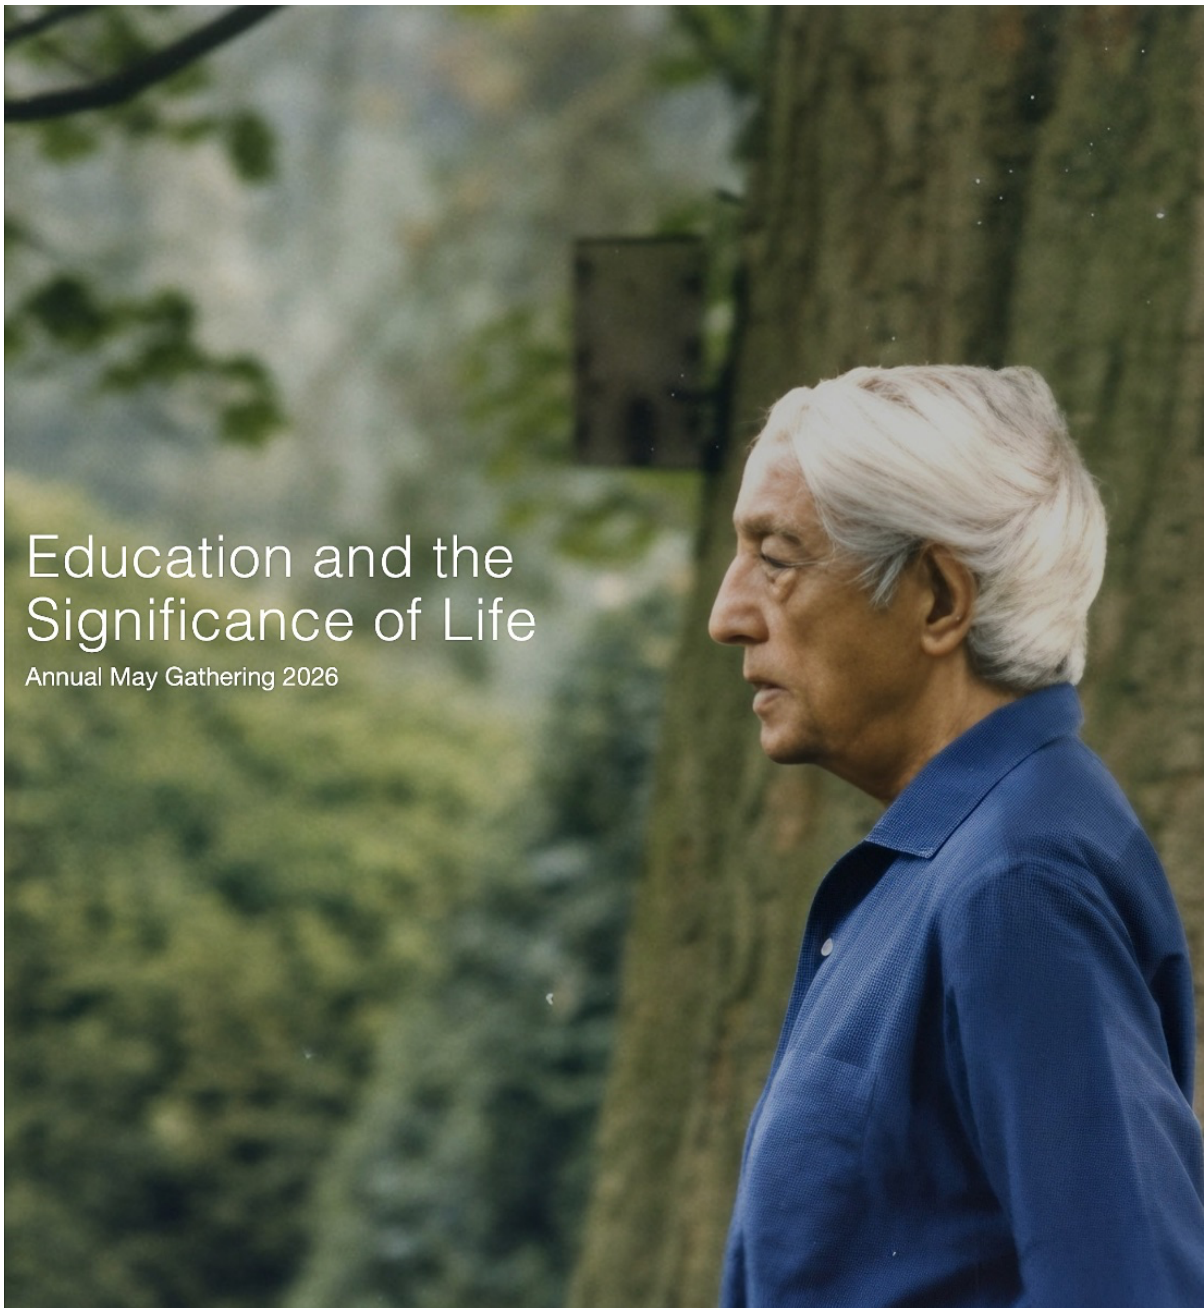

The podcast is available on all major platforms, and currently features over 180 episodes.

Across this wide selection of events, from public talks to in-depth conversations, Krishnamurti explores fundamental questions of human existence: the nature of thought, fear and desire; the roots of conflict and conditioning; and whether the mind can be free – questions that touch our daily lives and relationships.

Krishnamurti Foundation of America Annual Gathering

The KFA held its annual gathering in May at the Krishnamurti Centre, Ojai, California.

A keynote address will be included in this newsletter over this and the following three issues.

Krishnamurti Podcast – Relationship

‘Relationship, if we allow it, can be a process of self-revelation; but, since we do not allow it, relationship becomes merely a gratifying activity. As long as the mind uses relationship for its own security, that relationship is bound to create confusion and antagonism.'

This month's podcast has two sections. The first extract (2m 14s) is from Krishnamurti's first talk in Ojai 1973, titled 'A life in which there is no conflict in relationship'.

The second extract (1h 2m 55s) is from the second talk in Ojai 1949, titled 'Right relationship'.

Index: New Topics

The Index of Topics has been updated and now features a comprehensive selection of over 240 themes from Krishnamurti's teachings, carefully put together by the team at KFT from his vast body of work.

Each theme is explored from the main angles by which Krishnamurti approached them.

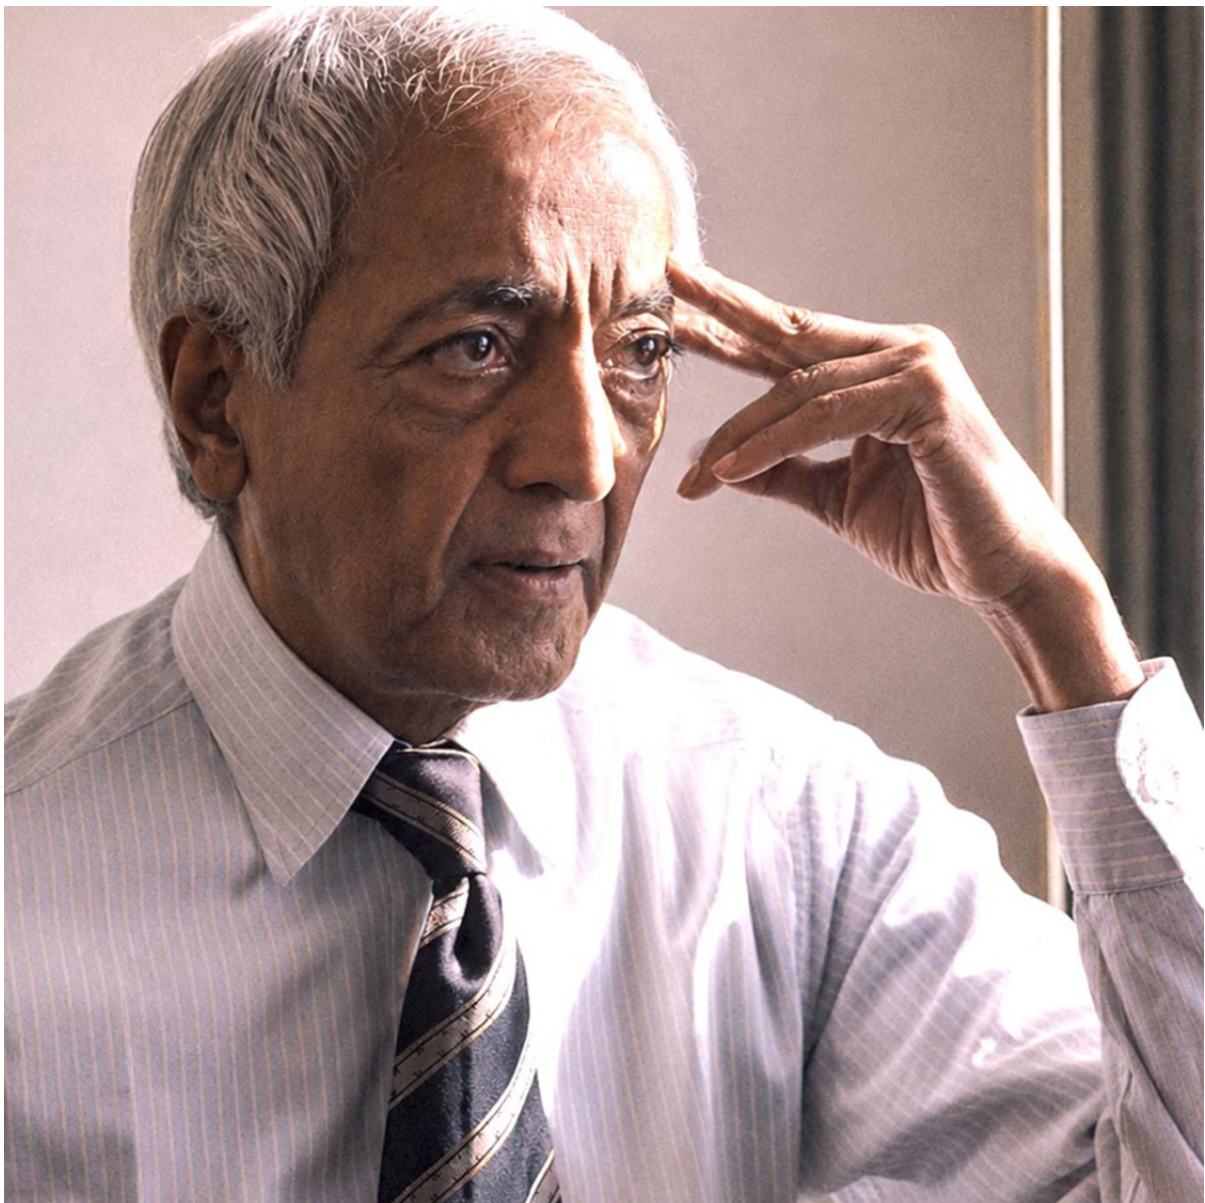

The Index is presented alphabetically, making it easy to jump to in-depth material of interest, totalling over 1,350 items, including quotes, podcast episodes, articles, videos and book extracts.

Your donation or legacy can help bring Krishnamurti's teachings to a new global audience!

Make a donation, or leave a legacy, to the Krishnamurti Foundation

Trust (KFT) and help ensure that Krishnamurti's teachings reach a new global audience.

Last year the KFT generated website traffic, social media engagement and advertising impressions that placed the teachings before an estimated 100 million individuals.

Clearly not everyone engaged with the material, however, carefully curated, attractively presented, linked extracts of the teachings were placed before tens of millions of people for the first time.

Each year the KFT releases new videos and audios containing previously unpublished talks and discussions; it assists with the translation of this material into more than 40 languages (inc. Arabic, Chinese, Russian, Farsi); it arranges for Krishnamurti's titles to be printed; and it continues its programme of preservation and dissemination of the teachings with state-of-the-art archives and a growing online and social media presence.

A main objective is to make Krishnamurti's teachings available to the world for free. This necessitates the reliance on donations and legacies, as many of the Foundation's activities do not generate charitable income. The Krishnamurti Association in New Zealand (KANZ) was founded by, and is linked to, the KFT, England (also a registered charity).

Donations and Legacies can be left directly to the KFT (<https://kfoundation.org/donate/>) without any issue regarding the transfer of funds, and they do not attract taxes. If you have questions don't hesitate to contact KANZ, or email development@brockwood.org.uk

Your gift will directly assist the KFT in helping share Krishnamurti's teachings with a new, young, international audience.

New Book Published by the Krishnamurti Association in New Zealand

I DON'T MIND WHAT HAPPENS

Reading or listening to one of Krishnamurti's talks can be a significant challenge. There is so much information presented and the mind tries to understand each item of what is being said which can become quite confusing. Almost to a point of feeling it is impossible.

We create our own barrier to understanding what he is saying. We don't understand that Krishnamurti has no intention of teaching us.

He wants us to approach his talks by immediately applying what he is saying in ourselves. Whereas we try to take onboard and understand what he is saying so we can learn and hopefully apply what we see as his teaching in the future.

This book contains statements by Krishnamurti gathered from the seventeen volume "Collected Works". (Krishnamurti Foundation of America).

The aim is to present simple statements made by Krishnamurti in his talks that each capture a strand of his message.

It is hoped that the reader can approach this by just reading one of the entries and maybe immediately apply it without judgement.

It is not a book that is meant to be read as a whole.

This new book is published by the Krishnamurti Association in New Zealand and is available for loan from the Lending Library.
